

Financial Reporter - pharmaceutical

(contract services, drug development, licensing, financing)

Pharmawire publishes real-time news and data on the most price sensitive issues in the global healthcare market.

We are seeking an experienced journalist in our London office to cover primarily the contract services side of the pharmaceutical industry, along with some drug development coverage, and some financing, licensing and partnership deals.

The ideal candidate will have a scientific background, or a demonstrable understanding of the pharmaceutical industry and R&D landscape. The candidate will also ideally provide past examples of off-diary story generation and investigatory reporting or breaking news in the sector.

In addition to a working knowledge of the biopharmaceutical industry, the candidate will ideally have experience covering the contract services space (CROs/CMOs). An understanding of the financial side of the biopharmaceutical industry is also a bonus.

A solid base of industry/regulatory contacts, including some that are particularly relevant to contract services (CROs/CMOs), is required.
